

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method that includes exposing a photo-sensitive medium to an optical intensity pattern and then heating the exposed medium. The exposing is performed under conditions that inhibit or prevent the optical intensity pattern from producing refractive index changes in the medium. The heating stimulates a pattern of refractive index changes that is responsive to the optical intensity pattern during the exposing step.